‘RECONNECTING WITH WOMEN’S HEALTH’

JOINT POUNDBURY EDUCATION, DUMFRIES HOUSE, AYRSHIRE & ARRAN NHS AND COLLEGE OF MEDICINE.

TUESDAY 12TH SEPTEMBER – WEDNESDAY 13TH SEPTEMBER 2017

DUMFRIES HOUSE, BY CUMNOCK, AYRSHIRE, KA18 2NJ

Poundbury Education, the vision of Consultant Gynaecologist and Fertility Specialist Mr Michael Dooley, is an information, education and networking resource for the public, patients and professionals with a focus on reproductive and women’s health.

The College of Medicine works to put health in the hands of local patients and communities and the clinicians who care for them, inspiring innovative ideas and practical ways of extending care and improving health.

We are delighted to announce a two day conference, open to all healthcare professionals, designed to explore and understand an integrated approach to comprehensive women’s health. This is the first in a series of joint education programmes with partners. The beautiful 18th century Dumfries House Estate is the base for an innovative project promoting the co-creation of health in local residents, which has included a successful project helping women struggling with symptoms of the menopause. The programme includes:

· Exploring the meaning of integrated care · Understanding the importance of a holistic approach to women’s health · Understanding how management of gynaecological conditions can be enhanced involving patient education and complementary techniques · Having time to cross pollinate and share ideas.

7 hrs CPD Fees: Full conference rate: £175
Day rate: £100
Half day rate: £75

Discounted rates available for all students/trainees/complementary therapists
Evening Dinner will be an additional charge of £50 per person.
 Accommodation is not included in full conference rate fee
